

User Story: Building a Sports Center in Lahti

We noticed a big problem in Lahti.

There was no good playground for children, and the old sports area was broken, messy, and not safe. The young people in Lahti had nowhere fun to play, exercise, or spend time after school.

Parents were worried. Kids stayed inside too much. Teenagers had no place to practice sports. The whole community felt that something important was missing.

So, we decided to build a new sports center and a clean, safe playground for everyone.

Search for a piece of land that was empty and not used for anything. The plan was to turn it into a place where:

Children could play safely

Youth could practice football, basketball, and running

Families could spend time together

People could stay healthy and active.

The new sports center would have:

A big indoor hall

A small gym

A basketball court

A clean running track

Changing rooms

A safe outdoor playground with swings, slides, and climbing areas

We want the place to be eco-friendly, with recycling bins, green energy, and lots of trees around it.

The project had a short timeline — we want everything ready in 12 weeks. It was a big challenge, but everyone believed that with teamwork, planning, and hard work, they could build a sports center that would make the whole community proud.

We want Lahti's children and youth to have a place where they could grow, play, and feel happy.
